Q4

Please share any other comments you have about the playground.

With the 4 separate areas there seems to be natural opportunities to have multiple ages / structures served by the different spaces (similar to now). Now the 4 different spaces don't share any thematic similarity so I don't think that needs to be a priority for the new equipment. Having the spaces structured by age (as is the case now) has some advantages but it also sends siblings in different directions. Might be worth having multiple aged structures/activities in each of the 4 containers. I like the large nature-based structure for the lower location and multiple aged swinging options in the middle. The upper container and the container off near the basketball court could have multiple aged structures including climbing courses or nets for older kids and cozy spaces or whimsical structures for younger kids. I'm also interested in some brand new think for the park like a zip line or other way to connect a couple of the separate containers.

The ninja warrior style course and bar based equipment are able to be used by both older kids and adults so this might be a good idea. Some of these adult exercise pieces could be stand alone things that you have 1 of in a couple of the containers to again make the containers useful for all age groups.

Q4

Please share any other comments you have about the playground.

We have a 1.5 year old and are very excited and eager for him to be able to enjoy the remodeled Loring Park playground! A natural barrier between the playground and the basketball courts would be highly beneficial so that children can enjoy the space and be protected and distanced from the current individuals and unbecoming behavior that occurs on and around the courts. At times, it does not feel safe.

I rarely saw children/families at playground after the first of the tents went up. If you are going to allow tents, then redoing playground is a waste of money. People are too fearful to bring kids. Honestly, I was shocked to hear that the playground was higher priority than the atrocious tennis courts. The playground is still fully functional. The tennis courts are not even functional any longer and really are an bad eyesore. Move tennis courts to top of list for rehabbing.

Fix the tennis courts for adult fitness! They are much more in need of repair than added a new amenity. Seems Park & Rec is great at adding new things, but then doesn't allocate money to fix existing amenities. The tennis courts are badly in need of repair and an ugly eyesore in current condition.

It should be far away from the child's playground.

Avoid even the POSSIBILITY of a creep lurking while feigning a work out!

If it is on the other side of the park, separated by tennis courts or some major buffer, fine otherwise...absolutely NOT.

kids are too important and adults can find somewhere else

Q4

I like the bark/mulch rather than sand in playgrounds. I also think it's important to consider how the new equipment will age, how likely it is to breakdown over time and how easily it can be repaired. Finally, the park is such a lovely green space in the middle of the city - the playground should reflect that regardless of the theme. The last thing I want to see in the middle of the park is something that looks like it came out of a McDonald's play place.

Help Design A New Playground For Loring Park!

Q4

Please share any other comments you have about the playground.

I love how the distinct areas allow for various groups (daycares, schools) to use the area simultaneously. A toddler-specific area keeps those little ones safe from the rougher play of older children. I highly recommend structures that accommodate many children at once (large play structures that allow for games of tag, or features like the large hill at Como Park in St. Paul which can absorb dozens of kids at once). I highly DON'T recommend many small, low structures like the newest Minnehaha Park playground - that playground gets so much use and the redesign was incredibly underwhelming. (The Wabun playground is amazing.) I also would love to see structures aimed at older children - obstacle courses, climbing walls, etc. It would be fun if the playground could include nods to the area - a cherry and spoon? Cathedral? Something pride-related? The pedestrian bridge? Shady areas and benches for supervising adults are also key.

Please make it accessible to children with physical needs (wheelchair, cane, walkers, standers, crutches, etc.), visually impaired, ASD, etc. There are MPS district OTs and PTs, like myself, who would be happy to consult with you on making this accessible and an opportunity for ALL children. Thank you.

Adult fitness station(s) are included in the adopted master plan for Loring Park and are identified near the playground - see image collage below for example fitness equipment. Adult fitness equipment does overlap with playground equipment vendors and may be an opportunity. The station(s) would consist of outdoor fitness equipment set on a pad surface. IF funding were available what is your level interest in adding adult fitness station(s)?

Help Design A New Playground For Loring Park!

Q5	Respondent skipped this question
Adult fitness station(s) are included in the adopted master plan for Loring Park and are identified near the playground - see image collage below for example fitness equipment. Adult fitness equipment does overlap with playground equipment vendors and may be an opportunity. The station(s) would consist of outdoor fitness equipment set on a pad surface. IF funding were available what is your level interest in adding adult fitness station(s)?
