- [Meg Forney] Be proactive in Blue Line Extension Project
 - Be involved in planning, and understanding the tree impact (Involve Craig Pinkala)
- [Meg Forney] Discuss memorial trees and benches and expand the program's visibility.
- [Tim Keane] Advocacy towards public groups and getting them to give more credence to the importance of trees through canopy preservation and expansion
- [Tim Keane] Advocate for a MPRB position that searches for grants and funding for MPRB projects RELATED TO TREE EXPANSION

I also talked to Noah DeVlaminck about the vacant Tree Care Professional position. Noah is a new forester at Tree Trust and we have been working with him very closely since last spring planning our City Trees Lotteries and commercial property planting program. He has been great to work with. Noah said he is going to plan to attend February or March's meeting to learn more about MTAC. Just wanted to give you a heads up about the guest.

I want to introduce you to Erick Lopez, an arborist at Birch Tree Care. Erick and I met last summer, and he is interested in the vacant Tree Care Professional position on MTAC. We met last week to talk a bit about it and I told him I would pass along his information and share his interest in the position with you.

Birch holds the contract with the City's Regulatory Services department for hazard tree inspections, and Erick is the lead for that work. We have worked with him on a gravel bed installation at Oak Park along with Project Sweetie Pie, and Birch was also awarded one of the five contracts for City Trees Outreach Grants. Erick is leading a series of educational community workshops through that grant.
