Join Commissioner Chris Meyer and your Northeast community as we officially celebrate the re-opening of the Boom Island-Nicollet Island Bridge following completion of updates.

The current trail connection between Boom Island Park and Nicollet Island was originally built in 1901 as a railroad bridge. In the 1970s, the rail yard it served was cleared and the bridge was given to the Minneapolis Park and Recreation Board, which converted it to a pedestrian and bicycle bridge in the 1980s.

The event will feature a brief program featuring local officials, a ribbon cutting and light refreshments.
